

The average hiring process is 42 days long, according to the Society of Human Resource Management (SHRM.)

Your industry's average time to hire should be taken into consideration. If you are hiring candidates to fill empty positions faster than the competition, you could be reaching the best candidates first. However, it is still important not to rush the hiring process and make a poor decision.

The best candidates for a job are a hot commodity.

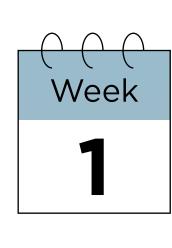

The most qualified candidates are usually off the market in 10 days according to the SHRM.

Example Interview Timeline

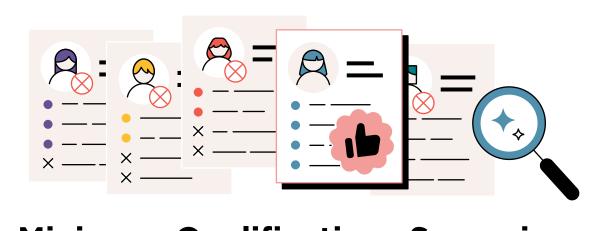

Post Your Open Positions

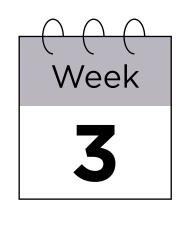

Receive Applications

Minimum Qualifications Screening and Application Review

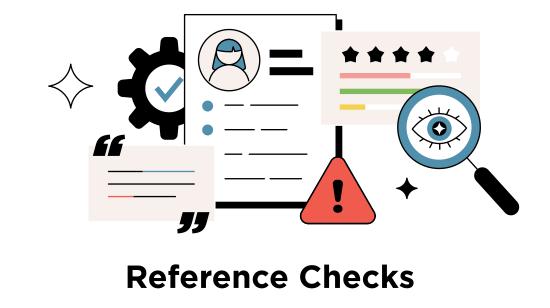

Week Congrats!

Offer of Employment

References

http://www.shrm.org/

www.ttisi.com